The validation data consists of a mixture of two users collected on six days. However, part of the validation dataset is collected by the two users on the same day. Please see the figure below.

The data from the same day have very similar time index. However, their sample indices are far enough. This information can be exploited to avoid confusion when synchronize the motion data and the GPS data.